Examples of Leadership Projects:

"My project for FCCLA this year is on leadership, but not just leadership, I also want to focus on humanitarian service and gaining leadership in that. Over the past year, I have been able to take a lot of leadership roles in my community and school. I went on a Humanitarian trip to Kenya last summer, and will be going on another one in Peru this summer. I will be an alum leader this year, and will be overseeing the business committee. With this, comes a lot of leadership and responsibility." Utah FCCLA Member

"In this project I identified my leadership strengths and weakness, with the help of some people who evaluated me, and worked to strengthen those weakness. I learned a lot about myself and my leadership style, and I began positive habits that I think will help me develop even further as a leader." Indiana FCCLA Member

"In my Leadership project, Color Me a Leader, I made goals to strengthen my leadership throughout the year and carried them out as I was a Senior Officer on the Colorado State Officer team. I and others reflected on my goals and how my leadership developed throughout the year. Through reflection I was able to evaluate my growth through this project." Colorado FCCLA Member

"My project has become about the leadership skills I possess and the skills I lack and can develop further. My project has helped me see my skills I am very strong in that I never knew or thought about. It has also helped me realize more skills I lack than I thought." Missouri FCCLA Member

"During this project, I have analyzed my leadership skills recognized my strengths and weaknesses. Then, I created Leadership Objectives and SMART goals that would help me improve my leadership abilities. These goals have allowed me to increase my self-confidence, improve my ability to communicate with my peers, and increase my work efficiency. In my portfolio, I describe each of my objectives and my goals, and how I have progressed towards achieving each goal. I have found that as I accomplished each goal, I am improving my weaknesses and becoming a better leader." New Jersey FCCLA Member
