PARTICIPANT TESTIMONIALS

I am teaching in a FCS Fashion Classroom and advocating for having a career as a Family and Consumer Science teacher. In my lesson I will include what I learned from my classroom observations and interviews. I will have the students do skeleton notes and a Google breakout to get involved in the lesson. The project is all about FCS Education and why it is important to become a family and consumer sciences educator. In this event I made a lesson plan, conducted two different interviews, taught a class, and observed two classes. This project is simply a good project for someone who wants to be a teacher someday, like me. Kansas FCCLA Member

I was interested in becoming a Family and Consumer Science teacher, so I began to research what goes into the profession. I researched different colleges, programs, and opportunities that come with majoring in this field. I had the opportunity to talk to two current FCS educators and I got to learn their opinions and feelings on what they do every day. I was also able to develop my own lesson plan and teach my peers. I created a lesson centered on the different career pathways that can be followed through FCS education and I included information on skills required for those jobs and financial fitness. I experienced being an FCS educator for the day and decided that I am very interested in pursuing this career path. North Dakota FCCLA Member
